"At some future time?"
Maybe we should plan now

"At some future time the city will have to revise its flood control program. Some day the citizens will have to pay for proper drainage," the mayor said last week in denying a petition for reduction of assessment on property on Monte Verde street. The request was based on the argument that the valuation had decreased because the property was flooded during the rainy season.

The denial was based on the argument that all the property in that area is subject to the same flood conditions, as is all the west side of town which slopes toward the beach.

At the last regular meeting of the council, City Clerk Peter Mawdsley read a letter from the League of California Cities explaining the ten million dollar appropriation made at the last session of the State Legislature. The sum is to be pro-rated among the counties and towns of California on a population basis and to be used in defraying the cost of drawing up plans and purchasing sites for post war projects. The amount Carmel would receive would be a maximum of $2974 for plans and $1322 for acquisition, a total of $4296, providing that the city was prepared to match it with an equal amount of money. The state allocation will be available in September and must be accepted or rejected at that time. An increase in taxes or a bond issue would not be necessary to raise the money needed to match the state allotment. The amount is already on hand in the city's unspent surplus.

If the mayor is correct in his statement that the drainage matter will have to be attended to in the future, why not face the problem now, and with state money to bear half the cost, have a survey made and plans

TOO LITTLE BUT NOT YET TOO LATE

Citizen contributions to the Carmel recreation program have not come up to expectations. A very fine program is in progress providing healthful, constructive activity for the young people. But funds are needed to keep it in operation. Many parents of the youngsters who are enjoying the benefits of the program are well able to make a contribution. Anything from $1 up to $100 will be gratefully received. If it is too much trouble to mail your check in to the secretary of the Business Association, Box 2345, leave it with City Clerk Peter Mawdsley at City Hall next time you are down town.

Oil Show And Photograph Exhibition Now At Art Gallery Are Two Of Most Stimulating Shows To Date

By PATRICIA CUNNINGHAM

The Carmel Art Association gallery this week reaffirms its status as a mecca for art enthusiasts. Each month, when one or more new exhibits are hung, this fact is increasingly emphasized. And this time the hanging committee, under the direction of President Myron Oliver, has assembled two of the most stimulating shows up to date, the group of oils by Art Association members in the oil gallery and a series of photography of army life and characters in the middle gallery.

One More Chance To See Firemen's Big Show Tonight

For those who missed the fireman's big benefit show last night there is another chance to see it tonight, at 8:30 p.m. Sunset Auditorium. There are fifteen acts of well balanced entertainment consisting of dancing, singing, instrumental music, patter and mirth-provoking high-jinks.

The Jive Quintet of the Presidio orchestra gives out with a drum specialty. Bob Bratt, Pmts. Hendricks and Masters, and Sgt. Ayers take care of the laughs department. Carl Bensberg, Robert Jensen are the vocalists on the program while June Delight Dancers and the Peavy Tumblers keep the spectators' eyes on the move.

A full review of the show will appear in next week's Pine Cone Cymbal.

Humor, Artistry In Photo Show Now At Gallery

Sergeant Joe A. Hinojos, whose exhibition of photographic studies, opening at the Carmel Art Association Gallery last Saturday for a month's showing and reviewed elsewhere in this issue of The Pine Cone, brings a new, youthful and humorous viewpoint of the current scene to our attention, is a member of the Panorama staff at Fort Ord, where he has been stationed since he volunteered for selective service in January, 1941.

He was born in El Paso, Texas, of mingled Spanish, French and German heritage, and received his education in Pasadena, where he concentrated from his earliest years on the study of art. His first intention was to engage in commercial art work, but somewhere in the course of his progress through the Pasadena high school, he became interested in photography. He joined various camera clubs, studied nights, and returned following his graduation for a specialized course in the subject.

Later he opened his own photographic studio in Pasadena, engaging particularly in the making of portraits, and after two years, which he describes as "hard going," he moved to Monrovia. He closed his studio there to enter the armed forces.

After a brief service in the infantry, Sgt. Hinojos was drafted

Also, in the middle gallery is a very special treat—a bride's chest designed and painted by Paul Mays. This artist is specially known for his decorative power and technical luminosity—two qualities that show up to superb advantage in this beautiful chest.

The art association members who have contributed to the show in the large gallery have done so generously by sending examples of their best styles. The three views of the Big Sur coastal scenery by John O'Shea are truly exciting. He calls them "Rocks, Big Sur," and they are done with the monumental verve that qualifies this artist to paint such subjects.

Burton Boudry's "Lookout Station" is especially enjoyable. Color, mood, subject are cleverly handled so that one enhances the other and

TO GIVE BLOOD

There are two articles in this issue on the giving of blood by civilians as a help to wounded service men in their battle for recovery. One article, by Don Blanding, is on the feature page. The other, a letter from Mrs. Elisabeth Crichton, appears in the Box G-1 department.

Anticipating that many Carmel people will want to respond to Don Blanding's and Mrs. Crichton's moving appeal, we have made inquiries of the Carmel Red Cross as to how they may do so. Arrangements should be made through Mrs. Elmarie H. Dyke, telephone Monterey 5474, who informs us that trips are made to San Jose, the nearest place blood can be given, on the second and fourth Tuesdays of each month, leaving Carmel at eight in the morning and returning about three-thirty in the afternoon.

Because it is vastly easier to transport the donors than the equipment and the unprocessed blood, it is impractical to set up donor centers in the smaller towns throughout the country. This perhaps answers the many questions that we have received as to why there is no donor station in Carmel.

Chaplain Kirtley Awarded Silver Star For Bravery In Rescuing Natives In Cross Fire At Kwajalein Atoll

WAR DEPARTMENT RELEASE—

With the native greeting, "Yokwe Kom," Chaplain Edwin L. Kirtley, whose wife, Edna Mae Kirtley and three sons live at 4th and Santa Fe, Carmel, saved the lives of many Marshallese people helplessly caught between enemy forces in the battle for Kwajalein Atoll. Assistant Seventh Division Chaplain, Kirtley was recently awarded the Silver Star for his gallant actions in the Kwajalein campaign by Major General A. V. Arnold, Seventh Division Commander.

August 2 Set For Grand Jury Probe Of Lovett Death

After four days of investigation into the death of J. W. Lovett, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Lovett, Carmel Valley, District Attorney Anthony Brazil has asked that the grand jury be convened Wednesday, August 2 at 10 o'clock to consider the evidence he, his deputies, the sheriff's office and experts from the State Department of Criminal Investigation have assembled.

Lovett's body, with a bullet hole in the left temple, was found late Saturday night on the county road ten miles up Carmel Valley near the Andrews ranch.

Mrs. Frances Andrews, whose .25 caliber revolver was found by the body, has been subjected to intensive questioning by the district attorney. According to her statement, she had brought Lovett to her ranch from the Linde ranch, where he had gone to have dinner with Mrs. Frederick Linde, at 9:30 o'clock to attend to a sick calf, which was a family pet. Lovett had been employed at various times on both the Lovett and Linde ranches. At 10:45 the boy left her home, Mrs. Andrews told authorities. At 11 o'clock she heard a shot. She went to see if her gun was in the desk in her bedroom and found it gone. Driving out to the county road, about 600 yards from her house, she found Lovett's body and notified the boy's parents.

When Deputy Sheriff Gene Trenner arrived, he found that the body had been turned over, the ground trampled so that footprints were confused and the revolver had been wiped off so that there were no fingerprints. Also, the body was found at the left of the lane leading into the Andrews place, rather than on the right, the direction Lovett would have taken had he been going home to the old Oliver ranch where he lived with his parents.

During one session with the district attorney on the subject of the absence of the fingerprints from the revolver, Mrs. Andrews was asked to submit to the lie detector test. She said she would do so if Mrs. Lovett, the boy's mother, would also take the test. Mrs. Lovett agreed to do so but Mrs. Andrews' attorney, Carmel Martin, advised his client to refuse, questioning the accuracy of the test when given at a time when Mrs.

EVENING SWIMMING

Mrs. Rudolph Rudd, director for the Carmel Recreation Program announced yesterday that the pool would be open Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 5 to 7 for high school students who are employed at summer jobs during the day.

During the battle Chaplain Kirtley constantly searched front line areas for groups of natives. Through a newly acquired knowledge of the native tongue, he was able to gain their confidence and lead them out of the battlefield to safety. Dazed and frightened by the bitter fighting that raged over the small islands of Kwajalein atoll, the natives huddled helplessly in blasted bomb shelters until the Chaplain found them and led them to safety.

Chaplain Kirtley, a major in the Chaplain's Corps, acquired a working knowledge of the Marshallese language in a little over five weeks prior to the opening of the campaign. Employing the meager sources of a Book of Christian Hymns and a New Testament and Psalms, prepared in Marshallese by early missionaries, the Chaplain built up a functional vocabulary in the little-known language. Assisted by a missionary who had spent several years in the Marshallese Islands.

New Book By Son Of Local Couple, Thrilling Story

Island in the Sky, a thrilling story of airplane rescue in the Arctic, by Ernest K. Gann, the son of Mr. and Mrs. George K. Gann of Pebble Beach, came off the Viking Press this week to make its appearance in the window of the Village Book Shop.

"This is not a war book," its author announces in his foreword. "It could have been written at any time since man took to the air seriously. This is a story about professional pilots and their special, guarded world—their island in the sky."

While the characters are fictitious, the narrative plot is based on a true incident which occurred in February, 1943, when Ernest Gann himself participated in the successful hunt for the crew of an airplane forced down in the icy wilderness of northern Canada. His prose style is direct and forceful; his characters, ruggedly, realistically introduced, come fully to life; the drama of man pitting his strength and will against the forces of nature in her cruellest mood—against blinding fog, clogging ice, sub-zero temperature, against hunger and betrayed hope and despair, is told here with a steadily mounting suspense and a sympathetic understanding of that mysterious thing known as human spirit which never for one moment becomes sentimental. The reader is permitted to share the experiences and the emotions of Pilot Dooley and his fellow crew members of the lost Corsair and take part as well in the tense race against time of the searchers. In shalls, the Chaplain learned to pronounce the language; and soon he was able to converse with a vocabulary of over 1200 words.

Chaplain Kirtley's assignment in the operation was to quickly establish contact with the native population. He landed with troops early in the initial phase of the battle, and followed the main assault on Kwajalein Island itself. Although the area was being raked with heavy Japanese mortar and machine gun fire, the Chaplain continually searched smashed dug-outs and shelters for natives. Later, in one morning, he was personally responsible for saving the lives of eighteen Marshallese, who were astonished and overjoyed at finding someone among the Americans who could speak their language.

In speaking of this group of natives, Chaplain Kirtley said, "I have never seen a more sorrowful group than they were when they first came up to me; and I have never seen a happier group when they discovered a Marshall-speaking friend in the middle of the battle."

"I told them, in Marshallese," he continued, "that I was an American minister with the army. That I was a friend of missionaries that they knew, and I had seen them a short time ago. That they sent their love to all the Marshall people. That was enough. They rushed to me with outstretched hands, smiling and laughing, with tears in their eyes."

After their wounds had been dressed and they had been fed, the Chaplain arranged to move the natives to an adjacent island where there was no fighting. During the boat-ride, Chaplain Kirtley began to hum the melody of "Jesus Lover of My Soul" and was very surprised when a native boy took up the tune and sang with him. Soon all the natives were singing the hymn in Marshallese. "Before we reached the next island," Chaplain Kirtley related, "we had sung 'Bringing in the Sheaves' and 'Sweet Hour of Prayer' and many others. The American soldiers, and the boat crew joined in in English, and we had quite a time. The Marshallese have good voices for singing."

As the battle progressed the Chaplain moved with the front lines and was instrumental in the safe evacuation of many more natives. All the Marshallese natives were being assembled and cared for on an island secure from battle dangers. "When I told them this," the Chaplain said, "they were very pleased. It would give them a chance to visit and see relatives whom they had not seen, because of Japanese, for years in some cases."

Denied Christian Worship services by the Japanese, the liberated Marshallese held their first Christian service since the coming of the Japanese, before the battle was over. Their own 58-year-old native pastor, Lomekto, used as the theme of his sermon, "Jesus Christ has come back to Us."

Chaplain Kirtley, who also served with the Seventh Division during the battle of Attu, is a graduate of Phillips University of Enid, Oklahoma. Enid is also his home town, the family home being at 1929 East Randolph street there. Before his entry into the Army, Chaplain Kirtley served as Pastor of Christian Churches at Cyril, Cement, Carnegie, And Mangum, in Oklahoma, and at Fort Worth, Texas.

the painting is one of the most convincing in the show. The fact that Mr. Boundy and his wife have recently spent much of their time in such a place is probably the reason that he has conveyed this idea with such brilliant veracity. And also, Mr. Boundy has always had the courage to be very simple and direct in his subject matter and handling of the medium. This approach is bound to lead to continually greater power because it demands a far greater design.

Two particularly rich and delightful still lives are presented by Margaret Levick and Charlotte Morgan. The Levick offers a brilliant scene, the corner of a table loaded with cooking utensils and vegetables, and behind this a nook with shelves and dishes. One is again reminded of the homely tenderness of Chardin, but this time the artist has departed from a more precise technique and her lights and darks and textures are brushed in more freely and strongly, as Hals or Vermeer may have approached the subject in their more relaxed styles. It may seem far-fetched to bring in such masters as a basis of comparison, but Margaret Levick has in common with them the ability really to convey a mood, regardless of how she does it, and usually deals with the sort of subjects that were the particular concern of the Dutchmen.

Charlotte Morgan's "To Enjoy" is an exuberant idea, richly painted. Her luscious pile of fruits looks like the real thing, not a tired studio set up as is so often the case with painting of this sort. Her massing of colors, warm against warm and cold with cold is one of the devices that makes for the success of this piece.

There is a series of landscapes, all pretty much of the same kind of locale and a treasure trove to the searcher for views of Western scenery. There are "Del Monte Oak" by J. Flobert, "Moonrise at Sunset" by Frank Moore, "Twilight" by Siedeneck, "Cypress" by de Neale Morgan, "White and Yellow" by E. M. Heath and various others by L. Maynard Curtis, Babette Fickert, Ferdinand Burgdorff, N. S. Sisson, Emma Kraft, Alison Stilwell, Thomas McGlynn, William Silva, Howard Smith, Frank Myers, Lester Bownda, Florence True, Arthur Hill Gilbert and Clifton Williams. Florence True in her view of Pt. Lobos across the meadows of the Mission tract, has done that most satisfying thing for the pleasure of the observer, conveyed the space of the middle distance. Another painter who gives the observer space is Bessie Boyd Fraser. Her two landscapes are plastic in the best sense and with a lot of emotional content, too. Her paintings have this intensity of feeling because of her natural instinct for spacial values and arrangement of color planes.

The portraits and figure paintings are presented by Howard Smith, Martin Baer, Maxine Albro and Marjorie Doolittle. The two latter, "Mexican Child," by Albro, and "Onion Peeler" by Doolittle compete in their generous appeal. They are so different in character and mood, however, that one could choose them both without duplicating experience.

Paul Mays has a decorative composition, the provocativeness of which is increased because of the title, "For Whom the Bell Tolls—Casa de Don Roberto." A black bull silhouetted against a luminous Spanish house is the theme of the design, and the point of departure for the imagination of the observer.

The oil show will be on for two months, the photographs for a month.

addition to telling here a compelling story, Mr. Gann has succeeded, in his refreshingly objective manner, in conveying to the reader a haunting sense of the romance of the air, the mystery and fascination of flying, and the magic bond which unites in a fraternity all their own those who inhabit the island of the sky.

This present volume, the first to be written about the Army Air Transport Command, is not Ernest Gann's first published work. He is the author of three books designed especially for older boys: "Getting Them into the Blue", "Sky Roads" and "All American Aircraft," and a number of articles on flying which have appeared in various magazines. A chapter by him is also included in "Happy Landings," a compilation of writings by well known experts on aviation.

He was born in Lincoln, Nebraska and following his graduation from the Culver Military Academy, where he achieved a reputation as a polo player, attended Yale Uni-drawn up for an efficient drainage system to be put in as soon as the end of the war makes public works possible?

Our civic leaders are sure to catch the post war construction fever, especially if federal moneys are made available, so it would be better for the town to be ready to embark on an essential improvement than to break out in a rash of city hall, complete with jail, which to date we have enjoyed the distinction of not possessing; whereas, there is nothing distinctive about not having adequate drains.

to a post in charge of the projection room of the Fort's theatre. Then, under Lt. General Joseph W. Stilwell, he was given a position on the Panorama staff and set about accumulating his own equipment, with which he has done a considerable amount of surgical photography for the general hospital and made official marine and aerial records for the army during the past three years.

He uses one camera for all of his photographic work, which includes a great variety of studies, flash portraiture, training films and those designed for entertainment. One of his flash portraits, entitled Grenadier, showing a man pulling a pin from a grenade while he balances a tommy gun in his lap, earned membership in the American Legion for both his subject and himself when it was chosen by the Legion for use as a national advertisement. Readers of the Fort Ord Panorama have long been familiar with Sgt. Hinojos' original and effective studies of the martial scene.

While the present exhibition at the Carmel Art Association gallery is his first one-man show in photography, it is not his first introduction in the field of art. An exhibit of charcoal drawings and still life sketches was held several years ago in Southern California. Much of his time is occupied with making training films and originating his own for the entertainment of the other service men at Fort Ord, and his chief ambition is to continue with this type of work after the war.

Frank Shea

Death came without warning last Saturday evening to Frank Nelson Shea, prominent resident of Carmel for the past fifteen years. He was stricken by a heart attack as he returned to his home on Camino Real and Thirteenth streets, following his usual custom of playing a round of golf on the Pebble Beach course.

Mr. Shea was born in 1883 near Chatham, New York, and spent all but the last fifteen years of his life in the Orient. His father, the late Martin J. Shea built the first paper mills in Japan, and prior to his retirement, Frank Shea was engaged in the business of importing and exporting.

Since coming to Carmel with Mrs. Shea and their young son, Francis, Mr. Shea had taken an active part in civic and community life here, serving from 1936 to 1939 on the school board, acting as a member of the Serra Pageant committee, and contributing time and effort to Red Cross drives and war bond sales.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Marguerite Shea of Carmel; his son, Francis Shea, a student in Carmel high school; a sister, Mrs. May C. Fawcner and a nephew, Bertram J. Fawcner, both of Piedmont.

Private funeral services were held in Piedmont.

Family Hears From Col. Kelly Recently Wounded In Action

A telephone call from Colonel Gerard W. Kelley to his wife and ten-year-old son, Dick, received on Thursday, July 6, in their home at San Carlos and Fourth, brought word that he was in Oahu and that "everything was okay," following his evacuation to that island with a back injury suffered during the action of his unit on Mt. Tapotchau, Saipan. Col. Kelley was commander of the regiment which captured the Aslito airfield on Saipan, and he was struck in the back by a fragment from a Japanese mortar shell which landed in the regimental command post area.

A graduate of West Point with the class of 1925, Col. Kelley served prior to the outbreak of the war as adjutant general of headquarters, New York National Guard. At the time he was stationed at Fort Ord, before departing for the South Pacific on March 9,

Perry Roberts

The sudden death on the morning of July 7 of Perry B. Roberts, 78, came as a sad shock to the entire community of Robles Del Rio, where he has made his home for the past six years.

A native of Mt. Pleasant, Iowa, he came to California forty-four years ago and until he retired and established his home in Carmel Valley, he was engaged in business in Burlingame.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Enola Roberts of Robles Del Rio, and a son, Perry B. Roberts, Jr., of San Diego.

Private funeral services were held on Monday afternoon at Dorney's Chapel in Monterey.

1942, he established his family in Carmel where his son Dick is a student at the Notre Dame School. Last November Col. Kelley was awarded the Silver Star for his valorous part in the capture of Makin Atol in the Gilberts.

HI JOE—Don't forget your tickets for the Special Police-men's Benefit—Good Cause. Bill.

We want you to be forewarned

As you may have read in the newspapers, the Office of Defense Transportation has given the railroads authority to take train space from civilian passengers at any time, to make room for wounded service men.

We sincerely hope that people planning trips not essential to the war effort will cancel their plans so that more room will be left on trains, and so make it unnecessary to take these drastic steps. We are going to take care of these wounded men first. They come first with us, and we believe they come first with you. But we and other railroads would dislike very much to cancel reservations at the last minute, or to make people already on trains give up their space.

The invasion of Europe has started, and how great the toll of wounded will be nobody knows. We have our wounded from the Pacific coming in too. And more and more cars must be taken for them from the restricted amount of equipment left after the regular military requirements are met.

We cannot guarantee that if you start a trip you will be able to get space returning. You must face that fact. If you're away from home on a pleasure trip and emergency space cancellations must be made, you may have great difficulty getting back.

For some time we have been urging people not to travel except on essential business. We haven't enjoyed doing this. For many years we have been trying to promote travel, and it "goes against the grain" to suggest that people stay off the trains. The very fact that we have issued these appeals should indicate the seriousness of the travel situation. And the new ODT order emphasizes this still more.

Why don't we provide more cars, more trains? Virtually no new cars can be built during war time. Materials are scarce, and car builders have been making guns and tanks and other war equipment. With the biggest army and navy in our history, about 63% of all Pullman sleeping cars have to be used exclusively for military service. Travel by men in uniform on furlough, or traveling on orders, plus the greatly increased volume of business travel due to the war production effort, taxes the capacity of the remaining equipment used in regular passenger train service. There are no more passenger cars available. We must get along with what we have.

We have now reached the point where there just isn't room on our trains for people who don't have to travel.

People planning a vacation or other non-essential trip may think "There's always room for one more."

Well, there isn't.

If you are planning a train trip not essential to the war effort, we strongly advise you to change your plans, now.

SIX STAR CARMEL POLICE FORCE

By MUFFET BENSEN

Carmel is quite unique in having a five man police force, boasting a service flag with six stars. This white banner is prominently hung on the door of Police Chief Roy Fraties' office at the City Hall Building. It started by having three regulation service stars but gradually as more men have been called into the service they have simply drawn their own stars in ink on the small flag.

The flag is not new. It was purchased in August of 1940, when Acting Police Chief Robert C. Walton was recalled into the Marine Corps, as a Lieutenant Colonel. He had been a Marine reserve for a number of years. He left Carmel for San Diego and his wife and child moved to San Jose.

The man who filled the vacancy left by Walton was Officer Rex Pursell, who was appointed in April of 1940. Before joining the force Officer Pursell lived in Visalia, California. He was here just a year and then he entered the army and took his training in San Diego. Upon its completion he put in his application for Officers Candidate School. He received his commission in the early part of 1942, and is now a member of the Intelligence Service serving in England.

Those residents who have lived in Carmel since Pearl Harbor will never forget the realistic blackouts that we experienced during the latter part of 1941. At that time the police force was very short-handed and they were doing all they could to maintain order during the days when it was thought that the Japanese would attack the West Coast. It was during one of these blackouts that Norman Casserly walked into the Police Office and asked if he could be of any help. He started work that night! Casserly was twenty-one years old and a graduate of the San Jose Police School. He had had no practical experience and Carmel was his first job. He was a member of the force for five months and then joined the Army Intelligence Service. Officer Casserly was among the first to land with the Aleutians Task Force.

Woffard W. Dufur joined the force in June of 1942, and while his only previous training was as a Special Policeman, he made an excellent officer. Thirteen months later he entered the Navy and is now working towards his second class seaman papers.

During the early part of last month the police lost two of their men to the Navy. Both men were "Oldtimers" here, having lived in Carmel for more than four years. Edward Jelich joined the police force in May of 1940. During the last four years he had taken a great interest in several Carmel projects. He instructed a class of Special Police for quite a while and was a familiar figure to many of the Fort Ord soldiers for his class in "Judo" tactics in Monterey. He is now receiving his basic training in a Navy Boot Camp in Idaho. When Jelich left Carmel, his wife and baby moved to San Jose to live with his parents.

Frank Hay was a member of the force for almost five years and although he had many outside interests he was primarily interested in the Civilian Defense. He was instrumental in organizing the Carmel group at the start of this war. He is also in a Navy Boot Camp at the present time.

Only two men of the original force remain, Chief Roy Fraties and Earl Wermuth, who with the new men, Harold Stalter, Ben G. Norwood and Harry Huntington, carry on at a job that becomes increasingly difficult because of greatly increased population and other dislocations due to the war conditions.

THE HAWKS WILL PASS

*The hawks make tempest and rain down
A glut of hail and what was town
And croft and stead and forum oak,
The meeting-place of simple folk,
Are broken, man's small talk is still,
While the hawks rest upon a hill.*

*The little fields, the husbandries
Of toil-stained men, the orchard trees,
The tended vines of frugal years,
The hoarded assets earned with tears
And ache and sweat in rain and sun,
The hawks have taken, every one.*

*The utter pitch of storm will pass,
Spring will return to bring the grass,
The vines will form, the trees will bear,
The fields will open to the share
Of little folk and head new grain,
Black wings will never swoop again.*

—ALEX R. SCHMIDT

"In that day the Lord will take away the ornaments of shoes and little moons."

Isaiah 3:18

*The little moons, the little melting moons,
More than beloved of the pallid palm:
Leaves of ivory, swans of jade,
Are cottoned now, are darkened, and foresworn.*

The peacock and the strawberry tree are dead...

*Even the lion by the Farthest Gate,
Ancient as Lhasa in his vermeil crown,
Lies broken into brittle bits, and brown.*

*Hush, then, be humble; or weep to see
How by the hedge the febrile hands of men
Dig with remembered guile the buried bone.*

IMPRESSION OF A CITY: SAN FRANCISCO

*A man was singing to himself.
The song was his own, and his hair
Worked in the wind, and the green mist of night
Sifted upon it. A movement from oceans
Spiraled around him, moulding his singing,
And played with a bell of glassy spars
In a lacquered Canton-arch above him.
A murmur from hills of graying light
Curled down into the street of many doors
That creaked upon invisible hinges.
Steps, and the drifting of peoples,
Crumbled still walls of dark; and the embers
Of yellow light from a thousand miles of withered, crackling, youthful hills
Welded golden chains around
The boundless city.*

THE BLOOD DONORS

By DON BLANDING

It is such a little price to pay for a great spiritual experience. You give an hour of your time (an hour which might be spent at a movie, in idle chatter, in futile worry or useless day-dreaming) in exchange for a deeply moving adventure. In addition, you will have the satisfying feeling of having in part repaid a debt (oh, not Paid in Full by any means, but a fine installment of that debt). Go to any one of the Blood Procurement Centers and give . . . no, lend-lease a pint of the precious body-fluid from which the miracle plasma is obtained.

Truly, you will never forget this hour. It will be filled with exaltation, tranquility and thankfulness that so easily one may give so greatly. The gift of life between men is a great gift. Your only regret will be that you did not make this gift earlier so that your second date with Life would come sooner.

You will take part in the ancient ritual of the Bond of Blood Brotherhood, but this time it will not be merely symbolic; it will be actual. Although there is no hush-hush nor solemnity in the quiet room where twenty or more of you will be lying relaxed, there is that sense of holiness, the vibrant serenity, the invisible radiance which surrounds shrines where people pray. Every face reveals the fact that while the precious fluid drains so quietly and painlessly out, the thoughts of the donors are flowing out, quietly too, in probably the most unselfish strain they will ever know. Look at those faces about you. There will be many Service men and women; theirs is a double giving, the days of their years and the blood of their veins. But most of them know what this giving means, God, how they know it! They are able to visualize as clearly as though vein were joined to vein, the glow that returns to the drained faces and the light that banishes the dark shadows of the fear of death as the magic plasma releases life through a stricken and shattered body. The faces of these Service people are so quietly serene; they are so sure of what they are doing.

But there are other faces which become tranquil as they realize the directness of this giving. Elderly women who are giving for sons, and praying that, if the need comes for their sons, some little bit of this gift may be in the transfusion. And elderly women who may have no sons, and yet, by this act have a hundred sons, blood of their blood now, through this miracle. They are thinking of this, you may be sure, the lonely ones, the sonless ones.

There are young women, brides or sweet-hearts, with tears in their eyes, tears with a strange happy shimmering in them; One sees this same look in the paintings of the Madonnas.

There is a Christlike quality to this giving of plasma which is inspiring and hopeful for the world After Duration. This blood is not marked with tags "for kith and kin of mine. For American. For British. For French." No. There are the unspoken words, those beautiful moving words, "This is my blood . . ." Period.

A young Marine, back from Guadalcanal, expressed something to think about when he said, "When you get that plasma stuff it makes you feel different about people. I was a pretty independent guy before, I could take folks or leave 'em. They didn't bother me much. Now, I walk down the street and I look at folk's faces, men's faces and women's faces. And I wonder . . . was it you or you that gave me that blood, so that I'm walking along here enjoying things instead of . . . well, you get the idea. You're not so quick to give the growl when you don't know but what that guy there is the guy you owe your life to. It's a good feeling."

Communion. "This is my blood." It is significant.

Women Convention Attendents Subject Of Williamson Talk

At the meeting of the Monterey Peninsula Republican Women's Club at the Girl Scout House in Carmel last Saturday afternoon, Mrs. Helen Clark Cranston, club president, introduced her board of directors, giving special praise to the membership chairman, Mrs. C. Montague Irwin of Carmel. Mrs. Irwin reported a membership of 332 members and still others coming in. This is the largest the Peninsula has ever known.

Miss Jessie Williamson of Berkeley, the speaker, who has just been appointed a member of the executive board of the National Republican Committee, of which there are but 14 members, only six of whom are women, gave a talk on the women's side of the Convention. She told of a typical woman delegate, a modish, middle-aged, motherly type who came because she wanted to learn the facts which would help her to do something at home for the nation. She told of Mrs. Dewey and Mrs. Bricker, both charming and intellectual home-makers who would be an asset to the White House at any time, she said.

Governor Warren's speech was outstanding, she said, quoting as his important statements: "American principles are indispensable but no man is indispensable to the American welfare." High tribute was paid Senator Tickle of Carmel who was chairman of the California delegation at the Convention, and who was also present at Saturday's meeting. He and Miss Williamson said they believed the Dewey-Bricker combination would make a marvelous team.

As a special surprise for the club Edda Mae Heath, formerly of New York, now living in Carmel, a well-known artist, presented a life-size picture of Dewey and Bricker. She has previously painted likenesses of many presidents such as Taft, Theodore Roosevelt and others.

Punch and cookies were served by Mrs. Wilbur Perkins and her committee. The hall was decorated with roses and gladioli, and the background of the stage with a large American flag that was loaned for the occasion.

The next meeting is to be held in August at the House of the Four Winds in Monterey. M. B.

GROCERY TRUCK FOUND

Mr. and Mrs. Paul McKinstry were notified by the State Highway Patrol this week that their Carmel Grocery delivery truck, which had been stolen July 2, had been stored in a Stockton garage on that same date. The highway patrol had found it abandoned near Stockton, no worse for the trip from Carmel except for an empty gas tank, and had towed it to a Stockton garage. There was no explanation for the delay in informing the McKinstrys of the recovery.

RED + NEWS

By HELEN A. FIELD

A series of photographs showing what becomes of some of the millions of dressings folded in the many American Red Cross Surgical Dressings workrooms throughout the United States is displayed in one of the west windows of Fortier's Drug Store, Corner of Ocean and Dolores streets. The care with which these dressings are packed, sterilized, and handled by doctor and nurse working close to the battlefield is shown in the pictures which are worth careful examination.

These photographs were taken "somewhere in Italy" while the Fifth Army was making its successful drive against the enemy. The caption for each was sent to Carmel Chapter from National Red Cross Headquarters in Washington, and explains how these particular dressings were used for our wounded servicemen. Be sure to stop to see these excellent photographs the next time you are in town.

Mrs. Vernon Goodwin, Chairman of Production, reports that there is a large supply of wool on hand at Carmel Red Cross Headquarters. The Production Unit has just been given a large quota to be filled in as short a time as possible. The articles to be knitted are for the wounded in our hospitals and range from stump socks of various kinds to Navy sweaters. Knitters please call for wool between ten and four any day from Monday through Friday. Headquarters is on Dolores Street between 7th and 8th.

The Production room has also received a call for Afghans for the use of our servicemen in hospitals.

10 Monterey Lions Bear Challenge For Game To Local Club

A contingent of Monterey Lions, ten strong, attended the dinner meeting of the Carmel Lions Club Tuesday night, to deliver in person a challenge for a return soft ball game. The local club rolled up an embarrassing score against the Lions over the hill in a game played on the high school field here recently. The challenge was accepted and the game will be played at a date to be announced later.

The meeting, presided over by President Fred Decker, was largely musical, the members entertaining themselves by singing old time songs to the accompaniment of Robert Hobart.

New members initiated into the club were Derek Rayne, Frank Murphy and K. C. Goid.

Thor Krogh Speaker On Race Problems At Demo Meeting

"What the Monterey Inter-racial Group Is and Why It Is" was the subject for an open meeting of the Women's Democratic Club July 14 held at the Sunset School library. Mr. Thor Krogh, principal of the Monterey High School spoke on the importance and aims of the group. The most immediate need, according to Mr. Krogh, is for housing. Families who have followed their men just as the white people have, are subjected to extreme discomforts. Recreational facilities are also limited. The Inter-racial Group is striving to adjust these problems. He emphasized that the negroes are anxious not to create or have created any situation that will cause tension. Mr. Krogh stressed the need for all who are eager to promote racial understanding to join the group as the disturbing feeling grows that the post-war period may be loaded with dynamite.

Alfred McNichols, head of the U.S.O. for negroes at Monterey, spoke for his people. Mr. McNichols has the educational background of Hampton Institute, New York University and is a graduate of Columbia University. He told of personal difficulties in securing a place to live. Questions from the audience brought out the many problems that confront these strangers at our gates. His attitude was realistic and unemotional and his talk enthusiastically applauded.

Mrs. Ida Newberry reviewed the view points of Louis Nizer's book on "What to Do With Germany" and Carl Laudauer's talk before the Commonwealth Club "Can We Solve the German Problem?"

Nizer follows the development of the German character from the time of Caesar attempting to show that the "Hun" has not fundamentally changed, but the traits have been perpetuated through the centuries. Both Nizer and Laudauer believe that Germany should be occupied and its affairs administered by the Allies for a number of years after the war.

Mrs. Ernest Leffingwell presided. The next meeting will be in August when the club hopes to have Helen Gahagan as speaker. S. N. F.

Thursday evening at eight o'clock. "The Inner Side of Thought" is the subject of next Thursday's talk.

Mrs. Lewis has given many years to the study of Theosophy and is a recognized authority in the field.

Bundles Asks For Leather Articles

Bundles for America is this week making an appeal for old leather bags or belts, ready for the discard, which will be used by service men now convalescing in hospitals for the making of various articles. Please bring any such material to the Bundles Shop on Dolores street.

Knitters are also urgently needed to help equip our men with gloves and helmets to protect them while aboard ships during the bitter cold of the coming winter months.

KITTY, KITTY

John Roscelli's fifteen year old grey Persian Cat presented her owner, Carmel's jovial garbage collector, with a litter of five kittens and a surprise. The surprise consisted in either two more kittens with one head or one more kitten with two bodies, John hasn't decided. At any rate, it or they had one head and two bodies, and though alive at birth, expired shortly.

Mabel Sampson Celebrates 20th Year In Business

August 1, 1944, will mark the twentieth anniversary as a Carmel businesswoman of Mrs. Mabel C. Sampson, proprietor of Normandy Inn.

A native of Muskegan, Mich., Mrs. Sampson spent her early years in Chicago, where she received her education, going later to Boston for special study in home economics at Simmons College. For a short while her home was in Colorado; then she came west to California and accepted the post of instructor in home economics at the Santa Barbara State College. She resigned from this position to assist in the equipment and opening of the El Paseo restaurant in Santa Barbara, and a year later, in 1924, inspired by the success of this venture, she came to Carmel, accompanied by her teen-age daughter, Elizabeth, now the wife of Lt. Bob Harnisch, and opened the Blue Bird Tea Room on Ocean Avenue.

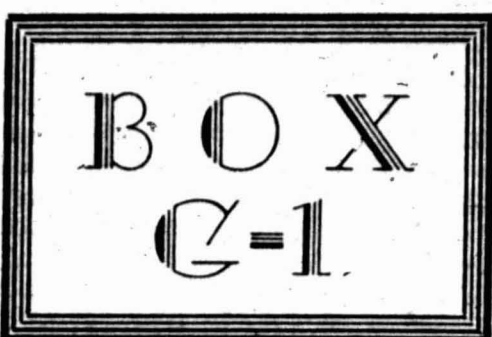

It was in that same year that Edward Kuster opened his new Theatre of the Golden Bough, and the village was teeming with activities dramatic and artistic. The Blue Bird Tea Room speedily became the popular setting for after-theatre supper parties, for luncheon and dinner gatherings of local and visiting celebrities. Among the artists who frequented it then were William Ritschel, William Silva, Armin Hansen, Paul Dougherty, Paul Whitman, and the late Rem Remsen, artist and author of the never-to-be-forgotten children's fantasy, Inchling. A guest book of the Blue Bird and its successor, Normandy Inn, which Mrs. Sampson purchased in 1937 and operated jointly with the Blue Bird until she sold the latter in 1939, would read like a Who's Who, not only of Carmel, but of America. During the pre-war days when the gustatory delights of Mrs. Sampson's famed Buffet Table met the unrestricted eye of all who entered Normandy Inn, one of her most enthusiastic patrons was Hollywood's Charles Laughton, famed as a gourmet.

More recently a gay umbrella-shaded table in her attractive patio has harbored a collection of half a dozen generals, ranging from three stars to one, pausing enroute from Washington, D. C. on a tour of nation-wide inspection. In the full score of years Mrs. Sampson has been an important part of Carmel's business and community life, few have had so satisfying an opportunity to watch the passing parade and note each factor of the changing times.

BUSINESS ASS'N. BARBECUE

Members of the Carmel business Association and their friends are planning a barbecue at La Playa Ranch Thursday evening.

Harold Nielsen, Ernest Morehouse and Corum Jackson are in charge of refreshments. Mr. Jackson is also in charge of transportation and members who do not have a ride out are to get in touch with him.

In a letter to the editor, Mrs. Elisabeth Crichton inclosed the following appeal:

"Where is the pint of blood you've been meaning to send to your son, your brother, your beloved? Are you still hoarding it in your veins? What good is it doing there?"

"Are you afraid to give it? So was he afraid. So divinely afraid that he bravely faced the enemy, and now, his blood, his red American life blood, is flowing out on the ground in some foreign land."

"Are you just too busy to take the time it would consume to lie comfortably on a cot in a cool, quiet room and release one pint of your blood to be sent to him, to save his life?"

"This pint of blood which you are withholding from that boy, is a selfish pint of blood. It will never do you any good, nor do him any good unless you give it. Your prayers, your cheerful letters, your money, are all to no avail unless you cheerfully, gladly, prayerfully give him your blood."

"He is offering his life, his gay, happy young life to save your country and his country, your home and his home. What are you doing for him?"

The "Gang" Gets Together For A Hard Times Party

By ALICE WILLIAMSON

The Teen Age Club sponsored a Hard Times Dance last Saturday night. The decorations in the room were just streamers but the costumes, ranging from smart street clothes to extremely tacky get-ups, were colorful and most amusing. With everyone working all week in many different places, there were old friends who clapped each other on the back enthusiastically as if they had been parted for years. The "gang" was there and the reunion was gay.

In addition to C. H. S. members there were also a good many visitors present, who seemed to fit in and enjoy the fun as much as anyone. Indeed, it was only after much difficulty that the judges managed to select the "best-worst" costume, and the prize of a huge candy sucker, well wrapped in numerous boxes, was awarded to Don Morton. Though all were at first bashful about appearing in the contest, Don had many competitors in costumes as amusing as his of bathing trunks, shirt, tie, etc.

The dance was under the guid-

New Show Opens At First Theatre This Week End

"Fashion," directed by Douglas Hume, opened last night at the First Theatre, Monterey, to a capacity audience of enthusiastic and highly entertained theatre patrons. The painted curtains by Maxine Albro, the stunning costumes worn by Mrs. Tiffany and Seraphina in the play and the many new olio costumes designed and made by Rhoda Johnson, are as much a part of this famous comedy as the acting of the Gold Coast Troupers.

Wilma Bott as Mrs. Tiffany is topping all former appearances at the First Theatre according to those who followed the rehearsals, and the entire production has the polish and finish that only a director of Mr. Hume's experience and talents could achieve.

The cast includes favorite Gold Coasters whose fans have followed them through show after show, with Louise Welty, who has played some 300 performances in the First Theatre; Phyllis Setzer, a fast runner-up since her joining the Troupers a year ago; Carmen Mercante, also in every show for the last year; Bernice Blair, making her first appearance on the First Theatre stage; Douglas Hume as Mr. Tiffany; Jim Jensen, heading the male players for a number of performances, running well ance of a committee headed by Bill Finger, which included Bob Hendricks, Jim Heisinger, Alice and Elizabeth Williamson, Bill Wishart and Hookey De Amaral. Mrs. T. F. McKenna was chaperone for the evening. The money collected from admissions will go toward paying for our new juke box, which was an object of special interest, as Saturday was its first evening on duty in the Club.

So successful was the Hard Times Dance that plans are now brewing for a barn dance and hay ride.

"We don't mind working hard to get their calls through"

All of the telephone people who work at the camps know what it means to a service man to be able to call home. They don't mind working hard to get those Long Distance calls through.

Busiest time is in the evening, when most of the boys are off duty. You will help them if you "give seven to ten to the service men."

WHAT'S DOING on the RECREATION PROGRAM

By HARRIET RUDD, Director

With the kind help of Dr. James E. Crowther, the swimming pool used for the Carmel Recreation Program was dedicated Monday, July 17, at 10 a. m. Present at the dedication were 30 intermediate students who were to have their first swimming lesson, and Mrs. Grace Howden, who has been most generous in allowing the pool to be used. The first lesson and play time proved interesting to the students under the leadership of Miss Carol Tindell and Mrs. Mary Jane Littlefield.

The cooking class directed by Mrs. Greene, through the USO, has begun to make cookies for the boys. This class is limited to the older children and has been well attended.

Interesting projects are developing from the pottery room. Boys and girls are beginning to appear with finished ash trays, frogs, vases, dishes and other articles. It is planned that exhibits of the children's work will be shown at the end of the summer's program.

The supervised play has been well attended each day with an average of 55 to 60 children participating in the games. One of the interesting features has been the opportunities for the children to meet out of town visitors and to know their experiences.

The beach party each Friday is well attended and good weather has prevailed on Friday afternoons. Parents are beginning to come and join in the fun.

The sewing class under the supervision of Mrs. Hugh Dormody and Mrs. George Moller has changed its meeting time from Tuesday and Thursday to Friday afternoon, 1 to 4, room 15 at Sunset, so as not to conflict with the swimming periods at the pool.

The Blood Donors

nificant and splendid that now when all men of the world are directly involved in this terrible cataclysmic struggle, that the blood of all men shall flow back and forth among them, giving where it is needed, without question, without stint. And because our cause is such as it is and because our code is such as it is, if our enemy, wounded and at our mercy, has need of this blood of life, he too shall share it. May we never change from this attitude because in it is our salvation.

Go, I urge you. The need is so great. Be sure, because you can be sure, that your gift will save or prolong life which is so much more precious to most of those fighting youngsters than to us, the majority of us, who have had the cream of our living, who have at least partially fulfilled our life patterns. We of America are escaping so lightly even though we give a hundred times as greatly as we are giving, because, so far, the robot bombs, the block-busters, the blitz, have not brought the horrors of destruction to our mainland yet. Try as we may, we can not know that ultimate horror when the forces of destruction strike blindly among us. Not in propitiation or bribery of our gods do we give this small gift of our blood, but in gratitude and humbleness.

Not tomorrow nor day after tomorrow, but today, get in touch with your Red Cross and be directed to the proper channels.

BLOOD DONORS

From the earth and the green things of the earth;
From the waters of the earth
And the air that surrounds it
Our blood is distilled
By the magic of life.

We do not give our blood.
We return it gratefully
To the vast reservoir, the source,
To go out again
As Life
Into the veins of those
Who have given their precious blood
That we might live.

In cooperation with Central Valley Project

POWER FROM SHASTA DAM FLOWS OVER P.G. and E. LINES

TO HOMES, FARMS and FACTORIES

Central Valley Power today flows into the homes, farms and factories of Northern and Central California—through the interconnected transmission and distribution system of Pacific Gas and Electric Company.

Under contract with the Federal Bureau of Reclamation, Central Valley Power is delivered to the Company at its Shasta Substation, twenty-five miles below Shasta Dam—is metered and paid for there. From that point the Company's system becomes the natural and most economic outlet for Central Valley Power, making it possible to put that power to immediate productive use.

We have undertaken to pay the Government a minimum of $2,700,000 a year for the output from Shasta Dam beginning January 1, 1945. Payments may exceed $3,000,000 a year—millions which the Government may apply to operating costs and to reducing the cost of water to the farmers of the Sacramento and San Joaquin Valleys.

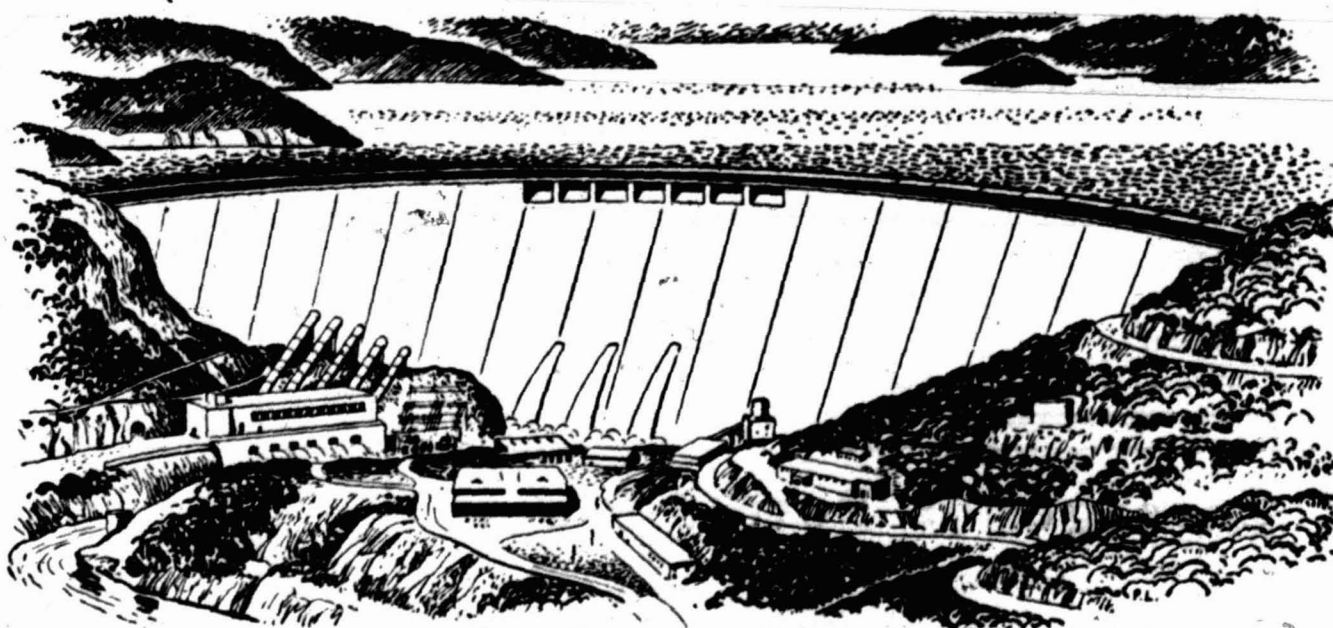

Distribution of Central Valley Power over the Company's system follows a program submitted to the Government more than three years ago. Construction of new plants has been curtailed by us; contracts for purchased power have been re-arranged; the output of our steam operated plants has been reduced—all to make a place for Central Valley Power.

We are cooperating with the Government as we have cooperated over the years with cities, irrigation districts and other governmental agencies—cooperating to provide a market for electric power developed as an incident to water conservation and storage.

When additional Central Valley Power is developed the Company will be ready to make a market for that too and to pay for it the same fair and equitable price we are paying for the power now delivered to us at Shasta Substation.

Central Valley Power is brought to the people of Northern and Central California at the same low rates they now pay—rates that are among the lowest in the United States. It joins with the output of Pacific Gas and Electric Company's sixty-five generating plants to meet the electric needs of homes, farms and factories—to serve the country in war—and when peace comes to help build a greater California.

The Bronze Star Medal Awarded To Col. J. Collins

By direction of the President, Colonel James F. Collins, General Staff Corps, whose wife, Marion A. Collins, resides in Carmel, has been cited for meritorious achievement and is entitled to wear the coveted Bronze Star Medal.

Childrens' Health Conference Here Thursday, Aug. 3

By Doanda Putnam Wheeler
The next Child Health Conference will take place on Thursday, the 3 of August at the Church of the Wayfarer, Lincoln street between Ocean Avenue and 7th, between the hours of 9 and 12 a. m.

It is now over a year since the Conferences have been established in our community under the auspices of the Carmel P. T. A. and the Monterey County Board of Health, and we are very much pleased with the steadily increasing attendance.

At the last meeting in particular we noticed with great satisfaction a number of new faces, and a large percentage of 1944 First Graders coming to have physical examinations for the Summer Round Up.

The Child Health Conference provides monthly check-ups and routine inoculations for all Pre-School children. It is also co-operating, during the summer months, with the National Congress of Parents and Teachers by giving complete Physical Examination to all children who are planning to enter school for the first time in the fall.

In this day of acute shortages in medical personnel and harassing difficulties in transportation the Child Health conference, located practically on our door-steps, makes it possible for us to continue to give our young children the sort of routine medical supervision that we took for granted before the war.

The Clinic is staffed by an experienced physician ably supported by our Public Health Nurse, Miss Noyes, as well as by several Nurses Aides; and while it is not in any way a charity clinic, its services are entirely without cost.

August 2 Set For Grand Jury Probe Of Lovett Death

Andrews was suffering from emotional strain.

District Attorney Brazil revealed yesterday that Mrs. Andrews had talked with the boy before he had gone to the Linde ranch. She had called at the Lovett place twice, at seven and nine o'clock on the evening of Lovett's death, both times to return a puppy that had wandered away. On the first visit she had talked with Lovett, on the second, he was gone. She phoned the Linde ranch and immediately afterwards called for him.

Among the experts who have been consulted by county authorities are members of the State Bureau of Criminal Identification in Sacramento who have been called in to determine whether there are powder burns on Lovett's head, and Joseph Swim, San Francisco toxicologist, to find whether there was either alcohol or poison present in the boy's stomach at the time of death. Swim is also a ballistic expert and will be asked to establish if Mrs. Andrews' revolver was the gun that fired the death shot. Their findings had not been made public yesterday.

Mrs. Andrews, the former wife of Biddle Dorsey, is now married to Corp. Frank Andrews, stationed at Fresno. He returned home Monday to be with Mrs. Andrews during the district attorney's investigation. Dr. Frederick Linde, who lives in San Francisco and returns to the Valley ranch on week ends, also arrived here Monday.

Funeral services will be held for the Lovett boy at Dorney's today at two o'clock.
